

On February 27, 2018 around 9:00 am I went into the mountain to check on our cameras. At 9:21 am I reached the well that is uphill from where the damsel flies were found. I noticed the cement cover had been removed. I also noticed a mason jar. I looked into the jar and noticed larva. I took pictures and left.

On February 27, 2018 at 2:25 pm I went back up to the well to remove jar. When I got to the site, I took a couple of pictures to show where the jar was found. I was wearing black gloves. I placed a zip lock bag over the top and secured it with a rubber band. I picked the jar up from the top where the zip lock bag was secured. I brought the jar back to my office at 3:10 pm. I got a paper clip, bent it so I could use the tip to make holes in the zip lock bag.
